

These small surface hoar crystals are buried 55cm deep on a NE facing slope at 9700'. The layer is thin and undetectable to the eye. They were found during compression tests. Although this layer did not propagate in my snowpit (ECTN 25 and 23), with a wind-load they might. Photo: GNFAC

Advisory Region
Cooke City
Cooke City, 2018-01-14