

4-5 inches of new snow

Date

Sat, 11/16/2024 - 12:25

Activity

Ice Climbing

My partner and I climbed Twin Falls in Hyalite (it's fat). Snowfall ended mid-morning and I estimated 4-5" of new at the base of the climb (~7,500'). The wind was not blowing and there was 12-18" on the ground. The new snow bonded well to the old snow and I did not see any facets or depth hoar forming in the old snow.

There were lots of skiers heading up the Grotto Falls trail and Mt. Blackmore, so hopefully you'll get more info from them.

Region

Northern Gallatin

Location (from list)

Hyalite - main fork

Observer Name

Doug Chabot